Others in the party were: Hon. C. Cook, provincial treasurer; Hon. C. C. Ross, minister of lands and mines; Hon. J. W. Huggill, attorney general; Hon. W. A. Paul, minister of public works; and Mr. C. The Elite Has Big Christmas Feature

For Mon. and Tues. next, and also Christmas Day, the famous Eddie Cantor will be the attraction at the Elite, the special feature being the Goldwyn technical talkie "Kid Millions."

From both an entertainment and sound showmanship standpoint, the producers have incorporated into this attraction just about everything that the public likes to see and all that an exhibitor needs. The picture is comedy and embellished with plenty of eye-filling girl dance glamour, lively with half a dozen or more catchy song numbers.

Moving rapidly, it has plenty of romance, light drama, lots of action, snappy gags and, unusual for this type of picture there is a substantial story. In the surprise finale, a color fantasy, there is a unique surprise.

In the yarn, Eddie, a waterflood waif learns that he is heir to a $77,000,000 fortune left by his long lost father, Egyptologist. Promising the kids a share he embarks on his great adventure to Egypt.

Mentor by Colonel Lucchesi, Eddie is thrown into a turmoil; then Dot tries to chisel in by posing as his mother.

In Cairo, Eddie meets a couple more menaces. Sheik Mulla is not going to let all that dough get out of his daughter's hands.

Despite all her shrouded veils, is none the less vered in all the latest and most modern American modes of going on the make. Eddie escapes and lands back home.

As the picture wears, it turns to beautifully tinted Technicolor. The kids have their day, all the rules to which they have been subject since the beginning of time being abrogated. Eddie builds a gigantic ice cream factory. Backed by the "When My Ship Comes In" melody as the hundreds of kids chant "We Want Ice Cream," the chorus girls milk gigantic cows who join in the vocal chorus. Then Eddie, accompanied by his childhood sweetheart, rides down the line of youngsters to drop great globes of ice cream on their plates.

There's comedy that's fun for everyone. Catchy music, rhythmic dancing with plenty of that necessary feminine appeal.

King George V. To Broadcast on Xmas

OTTAWA. In the presence of his family at the country home in Sandringham His Majesty the King again will broadcast a Christmas message to a listening Canadian. This year His Majesty will be introduced by a small girl before a microphone in New Zealand.

The empire broadcast will be heard in Canada from 7.30 to 8.00 a.m. (Edmonton time) on Christmas day over the Canadian Radio Commission's national network. Canada's part in it will fall to an Ottawa family, who will send greeting to relatives in England, Ireland and Australia and tell how they are spending the day.

Other "sound pictures" of this kind will come from England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales, alternating with South Africa, India, Australia and New Zealand.

South Africa is billed to describe the summer weather there and to contribute music from a native band. India will describe a formal dinner party, in keeping with the hour there.

Mr. W. J. Hill, auditor for the Workmen's Compensation Board was a business visitor to town last week and gave us a call. He was handing out No Christmas presents, though!

Women's Institute Elect New Officers

The annual meeting of the local branch of the W.I. was held at the home of Mrs. J. Stinet last week with ten members and a visitor attending.

The minutes of the previous meeting having been adopted, reports telling of the various activities of the body during the past year were read, including a report by Mrs. Hannah on the work of the Child Welfare branch.

Mention was made of a number of the more pitiful cases which the branch had been able to relieve, thanks to the kindly support given the Institute's appeal in this connection. The milk which has been supplied to some of the school children gratis through the efforts of the Institute has been fully appreciated by both the parents and the teachers.

Following the reports, the election of officers was proceeded with, and resulted as follows: Pres. Mrs. R. Greer; vice-pres. Mrs. O. Michon; sec.-treas. Mrs. W. T. Brunner; directors, Mesdames Mabey, Smart and Hannah. The president, vice-president and secretary were again elected as the committee on child welfare.

In this connection notice was made of the whist drive which is being staged tonight (Wednesday, Dec. 18th) at Wainwright, in aid of the B.E.S.L. to swell the funds available for the child welfare work.

Hostesses for the nice lunch which was served were Miss E. Mar and Mrs. Harris, and during the tea hour a singing contest was won by Mrs. Simmon, and a raffle among the members for a nice scarf donated by Mr. G. Graham saw Mrs. Hannah successful.

Anyone interested in the work of the Institute is invited to the home of Mrs. H. Smart on January 14th when the next meeting will be held and a paper on "Home Nursing" will be given.

Local Hockey Club Win From Holden; Lose to Totfield

In two of the regular league fixtures played on the local ice last week the locals went 50-50 with the visitors, winning from Holden on Tuesday last by a 5-3 score and Sunday afternoon had Totfield reverse the decision to the tune of 4-3 in an overtime period.

Both games were witnessed by fairly large crowds, which could not be judged from the gate receipts, as the opportunity of watching the games for nothing was much too easy to take advantage of. We would like to remind those who take advantage of this inconvenience that the club has to put up with, that it requires funds to keep a club in operation and if the games are made interesting enough for you to watch, your appearance at the box office. Thank you.

Wainwright 5, Holden 3

In the first league game to be played on the local ice, which Mr. Wainwright boys scored a win over last year's league champions, the Holden club, in a fast game by 5-3 count.

Wainwright took the lead, Sid Wornton scoring on a solo effort, but Holden evened things up towards

When the bell rang for the end of the period the score was deadlocked at 3-3 and an extra ten-minute period was played, five minutes each way.

In the dying moments of the first five minutes, W. Wornton bulged the hemps for the visitors and although during the remaining five minutes the locals were through the defence a number of times they were unable to beat Bowick in goal for the visitors.

Benny McGuire, who was between the gas pipes for the local boys played his usual starchy game and on numerous occasions stopped pucks with "goal," written all over them, nice going Benny.

Three goals were scored in the third period, which was speeded up somewhat from the first period. Russell Ganderon scored on a pass from Wornton and Ken Tory on a smart solo rush, for the locals. Edworthy scored for Holden on a pass from H. Black which put that within one of evening the count.

Holden came out in the third period and threw all they had on the offensive and were rewarded with the tying goal, H. Black being the marksmen. Lawley and Key put Wainwright in the lead again on a smart rush. Lawley getting the goal and Key the assist. In the closing minutes of the period Ganderon and Wornton combined for the local goal.

Totfield 4, Wainwright 3

Wainwright on the extreme east of the Gas Line League, and Totfield, who are on the extreme west end of the league, met on Sunday afternoon for the first time in many years, with the westerners collecting two points after a hard fought game which required an overtime period to decide. The locals who are short-handed, especially on the defensive end, were hard hit when Ken Tory woke up Sunday morning and found himself covered with red spots, commonly known as measles. It left a hole that couldn't be filled without weakening the rest of the team.

Totfield, who played a nice passing game, were aggressive and worked hard every minute of the game, which no doubt accounted for their win. They scored the only goal of the first period, L. Burnett from L. Glover.

They came out in the second period and went on just where they left off and ran up a 3-0 lead; W. Wornton and N. Glover scored on passes from Burnett and W. Wornton respectively. Wainwright were then put back into the running. Key scoring on a pass from Lawley and R. Ganderon getting one by unassisted.

Coming out for the third period with the score 3-2 against them the locals were trying hard to get the tying goal, which came after about ten minutes of play. Ganderon scoring on a pass from Lawley.

HUMANITY

still same. The more thoughtful members of the human family have always been curious to know how, when and where the manners, customs and habits familiar to everybody, began. It is not merely curiosity that prompts scientific investigators to go back to the beginning of things. Every bit of evidence that things which we are inclined to regard as modern are really very old helps to a better understanding of what we call, for lack of a better name, human nature.

The more I dig into the history of the human race the more firmly I am convinced that human nature in its main essentials, has not changed since the beginning of time.

BEGINNINGS

one mystery. My indefatigable friend Joseph N. Kane, spends his time in digging down to the beginnings of things. Some years ago he published a thick book called "Famous First Facts" in which he told who was the first person to do or invent or discover many of the things that we regard as what have always been done. Now he has a new book called "More First Facts."

I have gone through it carefully to see if Joe found out the name of the first man who ever ate an oyster. I think it was Dean Swift who said that man, whoever he was, was a real hero. But Joe Kane hasn't got his name in his book.

LIFE

spore hunting. There are still millions of questions about the beginnings of things to which science has not found the answer, but every year we come nearer to the truth. The origin of life itself is a mystery which has not been solved.

A great Swedish scientist, Svend

Arrhenius, put forward a theory that life first came to earth in the form of spores carried through space from some distant point in the universe. Scientists admit that may be true. The American Professor Compton's discovery of "cosmic rays" which bombard the earth from somewhere in interstellar space suggests that such a thing is possible.

When the biggest balloon ever made went up fourteen miles into the stratosphere, a few days ago the observers carried not only instruments for detecting and measuring the cosmic rays, but apparatus designed to collect spores, if there were any in this realm beyond the earth's atmosphere.

many. From the earliest days, peoples of all races have been puzzled over the beginning of things, and in the absence of facts they have developed folk myths to account for matters which they did not understand.

Out of these attempts to explain origins came many of the ancient religions. The most familiar of these is the Greek mythology, which has been preserved because the world has access to more written records of ancient Greece than to those of any other race. The Greeks imagined an elaborate system of gods and demigods to whom they attributed not only the origins of everyday phenomena but all of the good and ill that happened to human beings. In this they were like all other primitive peoples in ascribing human attributes to their deities.

I think a good deal of that idea of God as nothing but a superior and all-powerful man persists in the subconscious minds of a great many people still.

unchanging. My mother, who was brought up a devout Presbyterian, taught me the "shorter catechism" when I was a child. I still think that classic document contains the most perfect definition of God: "God is a spirit, infinite, eternal and unchangeable, in His being, wisdom, power, holiness, justice, goodness and truth."

I think if anyone could see the conception of God, as a spirit moving in the hearts of men and guiding their lives, he is not going to concern himself much as to precisely how the God of the Bible did the things which are attributed to Him.

SLAT'S DIARY

Sunday: Are preachers at church was told he was a goat to get a raise in his salary and this a.m. in the pulpit he said he did not want no raise. He said the church has already egged him with his credit with him because of what he can't collect in alms.

Monday: In 1 of my classes in school the teacher was asked what he wanted to be when he grew up. Jed Parkinson said little boy replied and said he didn't but he made be and he was a thinker of what he said round Thanks given.

Tuesday: Pa was on jury in court this p.m. and got a look at him. 1 a torney said a witness did not go to a jury and he said yes he was sworn. Do you not know a 1/2 of them at the a torney. Yes said the witness 1 no morn all of them put to gather.

Wednesday: I wonder what Ant Enmy is shooten at sum times. This evening at the famby side I was tellen about a tuch down I made at ft. hall in the p.m. and she said I better be thinken of maken 1 tuch the back dore with my arm drapered a rounda slab of baken when I grode up to be a mans estate.

OLD ENGLISH CUSTOMS

In many an old British mansion it was customary to light tall candles on Christmas Eve, and then a huge log was rolled onto the hearth, called the Yulelog. This log was so large that it required the strength of several men to roll it into place. The log was cut from a tree felled at midnight, and was to be placed on the hearth during midnight mass on Christmas Eve, and was to be lighted by the head of the family. A piece of this wood was to be laid aside to light next year's log with, while at the same time, it would protect the household during the coming year.

In some sections of Germany a piece of this charred wood was placed under the bed to avert the much-dreaded lightning stroke. The burning of the Yulelog in each household seems to have been a survival of the adoration one offered to the sun at the winter's solstice.

Holly, with its brilliant red berries and rich green leaves, is an accepted Christmas decoration not just because it is an attractive and cheerful plant, but because in the early days it was thought to be "hateful to witches" and therefore offered protection against them.

Later it was used as a reminder of the crown of thorns which Christ wore the scarlet berries representing the blood He shed. The superstition then grew that if one could obtain a piece of holly that had been used in a church it would bring good luck all year and would protect against lightning.

This Week in Washington

Official Washington

The Administration is displaying great interest in Presidential polls these days. The one that has attracted the most attention is the poll recently completed by newspapers served by Publishers Association Service, which reflecting as it does rural and small-town opinion exclusively, is regarded as highly significant. If there were a wide variation between the results shown by the different efforts to get at a cross-section of national political views at this time, Washington might not be so interested. But when the Autocaster poll, the Literary Digest poll, so far as its preliminary results have been disclosed, the Gallup poll, and the poll taken a short time ago by Robert J. Lucas all agree within a fraction of one per cent, and every one of them shows a marked decline in the strength of President Roosevelt's support, the total effect is impressive.

All the polls agree in giving Mr. Roosevelt still the best of it, by approximately 53 per cent to 47 per cent. Even the most optimistic of the Administration political advisers are now conceding more or less openly that it looks as if it would be a close election in 1936. However, a lot of things can happen in a year.

From Here On

Some of the things which the President's friends are hoping will happen are a strong upswing in business conditions, the failure of the Opposition to develop real leadership and a subsidence of the third party agitation. The latter contingency, as things look now, can probably be dismissed as unlikely to be strongly enough concentrated anywhere to affect the electoral vote.

As to leadership in the Republican Party, something may develop at the annual meeting of the Republican National Committee to be held here this month, which will clarify the issues upon which the Opposition will make its stand. The man who succeeds in putting forward a program on which all Republicans can unite will certainly show evidence of leadership. How to overcome the political effect of the AAA without losing great blocks of farm votes is a puzzle to which Republican political leaders have so far given the answer.

The strongest element in Mr. Roosevelt's favor, as matters now stand, is that business is definitely improving and that all the signs point to further improvement. The stock market boom is not regarded here as dangerous. Governor Eccles of the Federal Reserve Board pointed out the other day that it would not become dangerous until stock market speculation reached the point where it was being done on borrowed money. At present, he pointed out, transactions on the stock exchange are on a cash basis, and the Federal Reserve has ample power to check any inflation of credit such as caused the market collapse in 1929.

Retrenchment Forecasts

The Administration is very clearly determined to begin a policy of retrenchment of governmental expenditures. The statement by Representative James P. Buchanan, of Texas, Chairman of the House Committee on Appropriation, after his conference last week with the President at Warm Springs, that he was preparing to make the strongest fight of his life for economy, and that there was reason to believe that the deficit could be reduced to not more than $500,000,000 for the next fiscal year, is accepted here as a genuine expression of intention, on the part of a man who wields great power in Congress.

Dear old Brooks Brothers over on Madison Avenue, caterers to the elite and the college boys with money for many years. They've gone modern. But in a very careful, conservative way, to be sure. It should be told in hushed tones, that they're put in one of those practically invisible curved windows that refuses to reflect light, and makes it look as though you could reach in and grab off the nearest riding boots with no trouble at all.

First announcement of residential building plans to take care of the executive population of Rockefeller Center was made last week. Large apartment buildings are to be erected within a couple of blocks by the Rockefeller interests. It marks the beginning of the end of some of the old brownstone houses that remain as marks of the elegance of the nineties.

To thousands of sailors at sea, only one address is permanent—25 South Street, New York. That's the address of the 13 story building of the Seaman's Church Institute. Its United States Post Office handles as much mail every year as a city of 20,000. It has a bank of its own, a navigation and engineering school and a service to find missing men—they've found half of the 500 men inquired for since 1920.

Queer are the industries of New York. One man has a huge pile of "gags" for use by radio and vaudeville writers, cartoonists and others. You look them over, in the classifications you want them, and if you use any of them, you pay a fee.

Another queer one—the man who has newspapers and magazine pool, the hangings of a huge variety of illustrations and photographs. They're all indexed and cross-indexed and classified so that you can find authentic records of costumes, hair-dress, harness, wagons, buildings, sculpture and almost anything you can think of according to the exact period or country you want it. Borrow an illustration, and you pay a rental fee.

The premiere of "Jumbo" brought box office receipts of $17,000.

HINTS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Yet there is never any telling what any Congress may do. The reasonable certainty that a veteran's bonus bill will be enacted is a matter of some concern. If a plan for settling the veterans' claims with reasonably long-term bonds can be put through, it will not materially affect the annual budget, but many returning members are bringing back reports of demands for cash instead of bonds, and that may be one of the big issues to be fought out on the floor of Congress.

The tongue of gossip is active as ever on the matter of Cabinet changes. The latest rumors would shift Secretary Roper to the Post Office Department and George Peek from his rather anomalous position in the State Department to Secretary of Commerce. The President wants to keep Peek in the Administration.

It is more than whispered that he would like to have Secretary Ickes out of the Administration. Also, very strong pressure is being put upon the President to get rid of Dr. Tugwell, who no longer functions as Under Secretary of Agriculture, although he retains the title.

THE WOMAN'S ANGLE

by NANCY HART

Since the vogue for the platinum blonde died a social death, Europe has been swept by a craze for historical hairdressing. Mesh nets such as Queen Alexandra wore in England as the bride of Edward VII are popular, with the chertle dots and curls of the front of the net being replaced by a tracery of pearls, jeweled clips and sometimes a few ostrich feather tips.

Evening makeup for back and shoulders becomes less of a problem if you keep a bottle of liquid powder on your bathroom shelf. Properly applied, allowed to dry and whisked off lightly with a bit of cotton, and you can rest assured your back will remain perfectly groomed all evening.

When salad was only a hot weather dish, little attention was paid during the rest of the year. Today we have an almost unlimited variety from the simplest salad of greens to the salad that serves as a complete meal. With the latter, fingers of toast spread with anchovy butter, sardine paste or with minced ham mixed with chili sauce are delicious accessories. Hot cheese sandwiches and peanut butter and bacon on toast are also good suggestions.

Simplicity in the dress and make-up seems to be the answer to the problem of how the efficient, yet feminine business woman keeps up appearances, and self-confidence. But simplicity never means drabness. A single piece of costume jewelry, perhaps. A little rouge and a little lipstick, but never mascara or eye shadow for daytime use. Dresses that won't wrinkle, and shoes of the sturdy heel type.

Many of the new winter dresses call attention to the hip lines. Buttons placed below the belt, fullness and sheathing tiers down over the hips demand slimmness. Time-honored and highly effective, rolling on the floor with the hands over the head is the simplest and best exercise and massage in one. Roll back and forth across the room several times daily to reduce those hips.

EMPRESS Re-Designed for Cruises

By the installation of a permanent tiled swimming pool, increased deck space, and a Lido Cafe, the Empress of Australia, famous former world cruise liner of the Canadian Pacific, is being fitted for her three months West Indies cruise season in 1936.

The whole after-end of the 21,000 ton, three-funnelled liner is now being remodelled in England, and the structural changes being carried out will result in the addition of many square feet of deck space on "A" deck, an enlarged shelter promenade on "B" deck, and a spacious Cafe facing a tiled open-air pool, which will be the central feature of the new sports deck.

The tiled swimming pool will have an area of 750 square feet. It will be 45 feet long and 30 feet wide. Gay umbrellas and comfortable loungers will be dotted about the deck for sunbathers, and provision is being made for an additional full-size deck tennis court.

The Lido deck extends to the stern of the ship. 1936 schedules for the Empress of Australia, in addition to the West Indies season of five cruises, leaving New York in January, February, March, and April, provide for a number of Scandinavian and Southern cruises during the summer. To provide additional comfort during the months the Empress of Australia's passengers will spend in tropical temperatures, additional ventilation is being provided for. Bathrooms are being added to a number of the bedrooms.

The Empress of Australia will depart from New York for cruises of 15 days, 16 days, and 10 days in length.

CHRISTMAS SEALS

The most effective appeal which can be made to Canadians is through their sense of responsibility to their fellow-men. This humanitarian appeal is not forgotten when it is urged that tuberculosis be fought on economic grounds.

Tuberculosis strikes and kills at all ages. Neither the infant nor the aged is spared. The young adult bears the brunt of the attack. Tuberculosis is more prevalent among the poor, that group which is least able to bear the expense of illness.

Most of the beds in sanatoria are public beds. There are but few families which can carry the financial burden of a disease when the time required for the treatment must be measured in years and months rather than weeks and days.

Among the young adults who fall victims to tuberculosis are many who are parents of young children. If it be a mother, then the home life will be disrupted; if it be the breadwinner, the family will likely collapse under an intolerable economic burden.

This is enough to make it clear that we should combat tuberculosis, directly or indirectly, we all pay a share of the heavy cost of tuberculosis.

There is only one way in which we can lighten the burden, and that is through bringing about a reduction in the incidence of tuberculosis. Surprising as it may seem, there are thousands of Canadians who are suffering from tuberculosis, who are not aware of their condition. Their ignorance not only endangers their own lives, but makes of them a menace to others.

The first step in the campaign against tuberculosis is to find the cases. It is among the members of the family, young and old, where there is or has been a case of tuberculosis that unsuspected cases are found most frequently. It is for this reason that the examination of contacts is urged.

At this season of the year, all over Canada, Christmas Seals are being sold. The proceeds of the sale go to support the war that is being successfully waged against our enemy, tuberculosis. The army which fights for us not only takes care of those who fall victims to the disease but also safeguards our lives, day by day, as we go to our work.

TAXES ABSORBED
14 P.C. OF INCOME

Fourteen per cent of earnings of one company operating six bus subsidiaries in Ontario and Quebec were absorbed by taxation last year, according to an analysis of the relationship of taxes to earnings by this company which has just been announced.

Total taxes amounted to $101,244, of which $26,000 represented taxation on gasoline collected by the two provincial governments. In addition the company had to pay license fees, bridge tolls and tax on road mileage.

The analysis showed that the taxes paid to the province of Quebec by the operators of motor coaches are higher than those paid in any other province or in the United States.

REDUCTION OF ROAD DEBT SMALL IN '34

Only five of the nine Canadian provinces made any payment on principal and sinking fund covering the outstanding highway debt in 1934, latest figures of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics indicate.

Quebec, Ontario, Manitoba and Saskatchewan did not make any reductions on this account while the total outlay of the other five provinces only amounted to $553,656.

Experimental Farms News

FATTENING CALVES TO MAKE BABY BEEF

At this season a great many calves are being put on feed, for competition in baby beef shows in the spring. Calves for feeding should be good representatives of their breed, low-set and thick-fleshed, with plenty of quality and constitutional vigour. For best results they should be put on feed when between one and six months old, preferably before weaning, so that they will not lose their calf fat. They should be finished at nine hundred pounds.

The Dominion Experimental Station, Lacombe, recommends that for the first week or ten days the calf should be fed a mixture of three parts (by weight), of oats to one of barley. The proportion should gradually be changed until towards the end of the feeding period, the calf is receiving three parts of barley to one of oats. As variety in ration is extremely valuable wheat may well be used to replace up to half the barley. All grain should be ground.

At first the grain ration should be limited to two pounds daily. This amount should be slowly increased until the calf is daily consuming from one to one and a quarter pounds of grain per hundred pounds live weight.

When first put on feed the calf should be allowed all the good quality, well cured roughage it will clean up. However, as rapid fattening is dependent on heavy grain consumption the amount of roughage should be gradually decreased until, when on full feed, the calf receives only one pound of roughage to two pounds of meal.

If the roughage consists of non-leguminous hay ten per cent of linseed oil meal should be added to the grain ration; but if alfalfa or sweet clover hay is fed five per cent of oil cake meal will be sufficient.

To avoid the mineral deficiency diseases common to calves on heavy feed, a mixture of equal parts of salt and ground limestone or, for even better results, equal parts of salt and mono-calcium phosphate, should be added to the grain ration, two pounds to each hundred pounds of grain.

When it is not possible to have fresh water constantly available the calf should be watered at least twice daily.

SIX-ROOM HOUSES ARE MOST COMMON

TORONTO. A national survey shows that the six-room dwelling house is more common in Canada than homes of any other size. Nearly 60 per cent of Canadian households, it is revealed, occupy four to seven rooms, and almost 20 per cent live in three rooms or fewer. Only three and one-half per cent occupy homes of more than ten rooms.

Six-room homes are the favorites in both rural and urban Quebec. In Ottawa, the national capital, seven-room houses are most numerous. More than 60 per cent of rural homes on the Prairies contain four rooms or fewer, and in Alberta and Saskatchewan there are more rural homes with two rooms than of any other size.

Chicago, not New York, is the original home of the skyscraper.

PARASITES OF HORSES

It is as necessary as it ever was for the young farmer to learn all he can about the care of horses. Parasites of horses and the diseases caused by them are always of considerable importance. Young animals particularly are more susceptible and less resistant to the ravages of these pests and may be permanently affected. If nothing is done for them before they reach the age of usefulness, Dr. A. E. Cameron, chief veterinary inspector of the Health of Animals Branch, Dominion Department of Agriculture, states in the bulletin on "Parasites of Horses," issued by the Department, that a large variety of parasites of horses, both external and internal exist in Canada and may be introduced into the Dominion, and consequently it behooves the horseman to be constantly on the watch to prevent the serious damage which follows heavy infestation by these pests.

Contaminated water or food is a great cause of disease, and stables should be kept as clear of manure as possible. Practically all organs and tissues of the horse may be invaded by mature parasites or their larvae, and the methods of combating the ravages of the pests are fully dealt with in the bulletin.

ERADICATING BOVINE TUBERCULOSIS

The demand for the control of bovine tuberculosis in Canada continues to increase and steady progress has been made, states the annual report of the Veterinary Director General for the year ended March 31, 1935. With approximately 8,485,000 cattle in the Dominion, 2,251,771 or 26.5 per cent are under test. Many new herds have been accepted and are receiving attention under the accredited and supervised herd plans while initial general tests have been conducted in established areas in the provinces of New Brunswick, Quebec, Ontario, and Manitoba. Several general re-tests of areas have also been completed but there is still a number of areas that have been established in which the tests have not yet been undertaken.

An accredited herd is one which has passed two clean tests with an interval of one year, or, in the case where re-tests were found the herd, three clean tests with intervals of six months. Owners of grade cattle which cannot qualify for the accredited herd plan may take advantage of the supervised herd plan to establish herds free from tuberculosis. Care is taken to eliminate infection, and the same methods are followed as in the accredited herd plan, but no compensation is paid for cattle which react to the test, although they must be slaughtered under supervision.

In the restricted area plan for the eradication of bovine tuberculosis, all cattle are tested with tuberculin, all cattle are tested with tuberculin, the re-actors slaughtered under supervision, and compensation paid. All cattle for permanent stay in the Dominion must be accompanied by an official certificate of tuberculin test with the exception of cattle for immediate slaughter on approved premises and feeder cattle which are tested on arrival at destination.

START MOVEMENT TO SAVE GRAVELLED ROADS

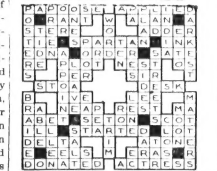

Action on the part of the Provincial Government to check the deterioration of gravelled highways was urged at the recent annual meeting of the Edmonton branch of the Alberta Motor Association. Final steps in dealing with this as a provincial problem was taken at the annual meeting of the A.M.A. on December 7th at Calgary.

The feeling of the Edmonton branch was that something should be done in order to save the huge investment in the gravelled roads of this province. Attention was drawn to the fact that in some parts these roads have had to be resurfaced already.

The condition of gravelled roads was ascribed in part to lack of proper control of truck traffic during wet weather conditions. It was suggested during the discussion that the weight and speed of trucks might well be subjected to more restrictions at certain periods. While it was recognized that the public works department now imposes traffic restrictions when wet weather has caused the roads to be in a poor condition it was pointed out that these do not extend to the secondary and rural roads.

ANSWER TO LAST WEEK'S PUZZLE

MOTORISTS HELPED FINANCES OF RASK.

Owners of motor vehicles were responsible for 36.2 per cent of the improvement in the financial position of the Province of Saskatchewan during the first five months of 1934, according to figures released recently by Premier Gardiner.

The increase in general revenue over the same period of 1933 amounted to $1,236,000 of this amount motor vehicle registrations and gas tax revenues accounted for $324,000.

The Family DOCTOR

by JOHN JOSEPH GAINES, M.D.

SEASONABLE TALK

Well, the "summer colds" have had their day for 1935. We all agree that a cold at any time is hard to get along with—winter or summer.

The family doctor gets all fussed up at times. He must decide whether it is "flu" or "intestinal flu," or just a common cold. Hazards many guesses from his exhaustive study of such things. Just what kind of germ it is and which is the best way to slaughter that particular germ. It does not matter, so the patient recovers surely. I do not believe anybody can tell the difference between an ordinary attack of influenza, and the common cold. It makes no difference anyhow—the treatment is the same.

There is no danger in either case, provided the conditions are not complicated with other, more dangerous things. Either one may be followed by pneumonia, an exceedingly dangerous disease.

The proper treatment at the very beginning of a cold—or "flu"—is to ward off complications. Just going to bed is the most important step to be taken at the onset of a cold or influenza.

Go to bed and stay there. Call your physician. He may be able to advise you over the telephone—but get in touch with him. Don't wait until the thing has run into something serious! Be safe. Use common sense. Better lie in bed two or three days than as many weeks or months!

Your physician may tell you vaccines are of no use in either the cure or the prevention of colds. I grant him that right. But I certainly use them both for immunization and treatment. Ample try-outs confirm my belief and practice.

REAL SPIRIT

If the real spirit of Christmas is within us we will, indeed, find that it is more blessed to give than to receive, and we will give out of the fullness of our hearts and because of the joy that giving brings us, instead of from any other motive. So to get the real joy of giving and to receive the richness of the Christmas spirit in fullest measure, give because your heart prompts you to do so, forget all else.—Katherine Edelman.

MORE BLESSED TO

GIVE THAN RECEIVE

This has nothing to do with banks or savings accounts;

it is more truly a saving than any other time of the year.

Yes, saved. That may sound absurd to a lot of people who have spent all their money buying presents for their families and friends and neighbors, but it is true just the same.

How? Why, because giving is the finest sort of saving, and not only saving, but investing. Every good gift is a permanent gain to the giver; it is better than a bank book carrying the same amount, for a gift is more truly a saving than credit account on a bank ledger. If you want to save your money, give it away wisely. Does that sound unreasonable? Remember, it is more blessed to give than receive.

AMERICA AHEAD

IN THE AIR

The great American flying boat,

"China Clipper," has opened the new trans-Pacific air service, between the United States, the Philippines Islands, and China. Plans for a regular air service across the North Atlantic are under way,

while the flying boats of our own

Pan-American Airways are running on regular schedules, carrying passengers and mail between North and South America.

We hear of every airplane accident, and fail to realize that few of these occur on regular scheduled air line flights. Most of the fatalities in American aviation in the year just ending have been in accidents to private planes or those of the Army and Navy, or in test flights of newly-designed machines.

Only eight airline passengers, the records show, were killed in the past year, in some 50 million miles of flying.

Considering how young the whole art of flying is—less than thirty years—and that commercial aviation has been developed only since the war, it would seem that the airplane has already reached a point of safety far greater than that which the railroads reached in the same number of years.

As air travel increases rates will come down. Even now the cost of flying is not so much higher than the cost of rail travel as to be an excessive price to pay for the time saved.

Americans do more flying than the people of any other nation.

American lines now link America with Asia. Let us hope they will soon bring Europe so close that we can hop to London or Paris over the week-end.

THE WAR ON

TUBERCULOSIS

Are you putting Christmas Seals

on all your Christmas packages this year? Those gay little red-andlendent activities. We understand that another province, which has not been working under any scheme of distribution, is seriously consider-

In The Mail Bag

We are not responsible for opinions expressed by our correspondents.

FINDS IT HARD TO TAKE

Dear Sir: Another of these infernal traffic ticket salesmen was around last week. It seems peculiar that with the annual approach of the Christmas season every school district in the surrounding neighborhood should dig up something to sell tickets on. Turkeys, geese, grab-boxes, Christmas cakes, pigs, if one bought a ticket for each and every raffish and by some strange coincidence was fortunate enough, in each instance, to hold the lucky number he could accumulate enough fuel and fruit cake to celebrate

Christmas every day for months.

And all because some parsimonious school district is trying to raise five dollars for the kiddies' treats.

But to get on with the story. This particular agent was a lady (they all seem to be ladies). She wanted to sell three tickets on a cake. Three for a quarter.

"Don't you sell single tickets?" I asked.

"Oh, yes, but I'd rather sell three," she replied, "they're bigger that way."

"How do you figure that?" I asked.

"Three for a quarter—three for a dime. Why should I square fifteen cents extra when only one ticket can win? Give me one."

She bit her lip and reluctantly handed me my ticket. I parted company with my dime. The lady put it in her purse along with a lot of quarters, and left. As she disappeared from view I turned to the stove and tossed in the ticket.

Now, I'd never seen that lady before and possibly never will again.

I knew such a school as she represented existed, but I didn't know where. I didn't know how many kiddies expected to feed off my dime, but I didn't suppose many would.

I didn't know how many tickets were being sold but judging from the pile of quarters that swallowed up my dime, a great many were.

Personal observations have led me to regard these annual sales in much the same manner as watered stock. There seems no limit to the number of tickets; as long as the market's steady, or Christmas holds out, they are created in abundance.

Just why there are not offered for sale a few months earlier I don't know. They certainly should sell more.

Raffles should be confined to the districts they are meant to benefit.

The tickets should be limited. And above all else, no individual should be first asked to buy only one ticket.

Then pull the bargain gag. If he bites, well and good. If he doesn't press him. He may not be a miner.

Yet, with all these faults we firmly believe in raffles. We have never won anything; but then we might.

As long as we have a dime, there's hope. And, since only one ticket can win, why buy three?

—BUYER.

"SANTA-GRAM" YOUR

FRIENDS FOR XMAS

MONTREAL. Special cable rates for Christmas and New Year greeting messages are again announced by the Canadian National Telegraphs.

A choice of seventeen specially prepared greeting messages appropriately expressing a wide variety of forms of good wishes has been made available. These cable messages may be sent to Great Britain, the Irish Free State and a large number of foreign countries.

In particular, rates to all points in the British Empire have this year been further substantially reduced and those wishing to extend greetings to friends in the old land will be agreeably surprised at the low cost.

Another important development in the Christmas greeting service is the "Santagram." Parents can arrange for a telegram on a special form to be sent from the North Pole by our jolly friend Santa Claus. This service has been very popular and provides a great thrill for the kiddies.

It is suggested that the messages be filed as early as possible.

In Canada, the greeting messages will be delivered on specially appropriate forms, and there is no doubt that such messages will con-

People who met the late Mr. Les Irving when he was visiting this district last summer, will remember how cheerful and optimistic he was about the impending provincial election and the outlook of things generally. SYNOPSIS... Young, ambitious and efficient Donald Fisk of New York, engineer and key field man for a small oil corporation, is sent into the desert heat of El Centro, S.A., to bring in paying wells in a very promising field. He takes his young wife, Gloria, with him and together they endure the soul-trying heat and dust in the blazing desert. Against great odds, the drilling has progressed until Fisk is certain that all will be struck, so he makes steam reservations to take them home and away from the hardships his young wife has endured so bravely. Gloria is beside herself with joy and days too soon start to pack luggage. Then... NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

SECOND INSTALLMENT
Gloria regained control of herself with an effort and her flower-like face broke into a smile. "I'll be patient. Only don't let anything happen."

As he left the house, Donald told himself with a pang that he had a sick girl on his hands. Gloria was sicker than she had permitted him to realize and it had taken this brief flicker of animation at the prospect of going home to show him just how weak she really was. She was fragile, bloodiest the life and the laughter had gone out of her. As a matter of fact he had watched it go day by day for months and he had tried vainly to check it but never before had he appreciated to what extent she had faded. If anything should happen to her—Don closed his eyes and refused to face such a thought. Only ten more days, then they would go north to those green fields and cool waters of which she was forever wistfully speaking. Ten days wasn't long.

This certainly was not a woman's country. Least of all was it a country for a lovely, high-bred creature like Gloria. But Don reflected, it had been this or nothing. Gloria had been willing, was eager, to marry him, even against her family's advice, and even though it had meant exile. Nor had she one complaint, at least not until today when it was all over and she could voice her hatred of this life without hurting him. That was like her, to fade away, if need be, to die by inches at his side, without complaint.

One thing was sure—without Gloria's love to strengthen him he would never have had the courage and pertinacity to win his fight against the desert. The mere fact that his own money and that of his friends was sunk in the El Centro field would not have been sufficient to keep him here. Not by any means. But with a wife like Gloria, forced to prepare the meal. Any excited, upon failure to grapple the to-become bit stem, to sidetrack in obstruction, so he explained. In her words he would have drilled it by allowing the second bit to be deflected by the first. The lost tool was in reality a forty-foot steel shaft standing in the bottom of the hole, and it weighed many hundreds of pounds. Inasmuch as it was tipped so that its upper end rested against the side of the well, it was not easy to get hold of it. This new drilling would have resulted in a crooked hole fifty or sixty feet deep and would have left the obstructing tool standing upon a shelf of rock. By exploding a small shot a few feet below this shelf the lost bit could have been dropped into the pocket—

But Fisk declared he was afraid to attempt this maneuver so close to the structure. Other oil men had warned him against doing so. Twice something of the sort had been tried in the El Centro field and in each instance a ruined well had resulted. The shots had seared the rock—due perhaps to some peculiar characteristic of formation. Again he had told his wife not to worry; new fishing tools were on the way up from the coast; McKay might have the obstruction out before they arrived—in fact, he might get hold of that big stem at any moment. That was the way with fishing jobs.

Don maintained this hopeful attitude in his wife's presence. He continued to be cheery, but out at the Homestead, where he spent twenty out of every twenty-four hours, he was anything but optimistic. Nor was he a pleasant person to get along with under ordinary circumstances. He would have refused to be unduly perturbed by the oil game and grappling blindly for a bit stem in the bottom of a steel-lined shaft a quarter of a mile deep is slow work at best. Sometimes it takes weeks.

But circumstances were not ordinary. Gloria's heart was set on catching that boat. The days were slipping past, and Don could no longer blind himself to the truth that she was seriously ill and that he was seriously ill and that he was seriously ill and that he was seriously ill.

Don returned for breakfast, hot and tired and dirty; he began gruffly: "I was afraid of McKay! He dropped a tool in the hole."

"What does that mean?"

"He didn't set up his joint properly, I presume. Anyhow, it means we've got to fish it out."

"Is that a—long job?"

"Not necessarily; depends on how the stem is cocked and things like that. We're going to take a picture of it—you know, lower a soap mold and take an impression. While they're doing that I'm going to get a few hours' sleep—I haven't been off my feet all night. Lord, it's hot!"

Fisk lay on his bed all that morning, and he presided in his sleep. Meanwhile his wife went on with a man couldn't quit; he couldn't tolerate failure of any sort.

If he and Gloria had been able to get away once in a while without not have been so bad, but money—money managed to drill had gone into new equipment, into storage tanks, tank cars, drilling rigs, leases, and the like; for in order to live at all in this business it had been necessary to expand and as a result production had not quite kept pace with expenditures. It had been the old, heart-breaking story of most so-called successful oil enterprises—just enough encouragement to render it impossible to let go. But the company had held holdings now, and with the Homestead making five thousand barrels a day, yes, or even one-half that, it would be out of the red in no time and its stock would be worth a lot. It would be worth a million dollars, something like that, and it would be worth a million dollars, something like that, and it would be worth a million dollars, something like that.

Ten days more, then New York with its shops and its lights and its theaters. He'd show Gloria that he wasn't merely a machine eternally thinking, talking, dreaming, living. He'd prove that he was the wisest, the most extravagant, the most devoted lover the world had ever seen. The things he would buy for her, the love, the tenderness, he'd shower upon her! He'd repay her for the faith and for the courage she had shown. Ten days more! Gloria ate but little supper that night. She attributed her lack of appetite to excitement, to the anticipation of leaving, but as a matter of fact, Francisco, the one servant they could afford, had been more than usually shiftless that afternoon and the young wife herself had been

TIME YET TO BAKE YOUR CHRISTMAS CAKE

"Do it now" is a good recipe to follow, allowing just about the ideal length of time for mellowing. Here are two of the most popular recipes:

DAIRY FRUIT CAKE

- 1 pound brown sugar
- 1 pound butter, creamed
- 8 eggs
- 2 teaspoons cinnamon
- 2 teaspoons nutmeg
- 1 teaspoon cloves
- 1 cup strong coffee (or cider)
- 1/2 cup molasses
- 1 teaspoon soda
- 4 pounds raisins
- 2 pounds currants
- 1 pound citron peel
- 1/2 pound each of orange and lemon peel
- 1 pound dates
- 1 pound walnuts
- Candied pineapple and cherries (if desired)

4 cups flour
Mix fruit and nuts with two cups flour. Cream butter and sugar well, add spice and yolks of eggs (beaten until light). Add molasses (to which soda has been added) and coffee to this mixture and stir well. (Remaining two cups). Combine with fruit and flour, add unbeaten egg whites and bake in a slow oven 2 1/2 hours. A pan of hot water in the oven will keep the cake moist.

WHITE FRUIT CAKE

- 1 lb. white raisins
- 1/2 lb. citron, cut finely
- 1/2 lb. candied pineapple, cut finely
- 1/4 cups chopped blanched almonds
- 1/2 cup shredded coconut
- 1/2 cup shortening
- 1 cup granulated sugar
- 3 tablespoons bottled milk or 1 1/2 tablespoons evaporated milk plus 1 1/2 tablespoons water
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon cream of tartar
- 2 cups pastry or cake flour
- 6 egg whites, beaten stiffly

Soak the raisins in cold water until plump, then dry thoroughly. Cut the citron and pineapple into thin pieces with scissors and add with the almonds and coconut to the raisins. Cream the shortening and sugar by hand or with an electric beater at high speed until well blended. Then add the milk and the sifted dry ingredients by hand or with the electric beater at low speed.

mine, but the crowd relies on me. They would never forgive me I'd be a quitter!"

"I suppose so," Gloria tried unsuccessfully to check the tears. "My people, too! We wouldn't have our triumph, would we? You mustn't mind me, I'm such a baby. I'll be all right as soon as I get home."

Day after day the work at the well went on. Many times Fisk was tempted to blast, but the men talked him out of the idea.

Fold in the egg whites and then add the previously-mixed fruits. Full well-greased pans of the desired size 2 1/2 full of the mixture and bake 1 hour, 10 minutes in a moderate oven of 350 degrees.

SEASONABLE SURPRISES

One must be brave indeed to fume the slightest fault with our national Christmas or New Year dinner. But fearlessly I proclaim a fault. Merely a tiny one, perhaps, but a fault for a that. The grand and glorious holiday feast is too uniform. Before we approach the table we can recite the foods that will be served.

Turkey, dressing, cranberry sauce, celery, olives, mince pie—on millions of tables almost identical dinners will be spread. At comparatively few will alert hostesses see to it that they include one or two of those novel "surprise" dishes which are so eagerly sought at other times.

Here are a few seasonal recipes for those who see the value of varying the holiday menu, or for those who entertain during the winter-time when such dishes are equally in order.

Holiday Cake

- 1 1/2 cups sifted cake flour
- 1 teaspoon double-acting baking powder
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 cup butter or other shortening
- 3/4 cup sugar
- 5 egg whites, unbeaten
- 1/2 cup finely cut candied cherries
- 1/2 cup finely cut citron
- 1/2 cup seedless raisins
- 1/2 cup chopped blanched almonds
- 1/2 cup shredded coconut
- 1/2 teaspoon almond extract
- 1/2 teaspoon vanilla

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift together three times. Cream butter thoroughly, add sugar gradually, and cream together until light and fluffy. Add egg whites, one at a time, beating very thoroughly after each. Add fruit, nuts, coconut, and flavoring, and mix well. Add flour, a small amount at a time, beating after each addition until smooth. Bake in loaf pan 8x4x3 inches, which has been greased, lined with heavy paper, and again greased. Bake in slow oven (300 degrees F.) 1 hour

- and 15 minutes, or until done.
- Cranberry Muffins
- 2 1/2 cups sifted flour
- 2 1/2 teaspoons double-acting baking powder
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1 cup coarsely chopped cranberries
- 2 eggs, well beaten
- 1 cup milk
- 4 tablespoons melted butter or other shortening
- Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder, salt and sugar, and sift again. Combine berries with 1 1/2 cup of flour mixture. Combine eggs, milk and shortening. Add to flour, beating only enough to dampen all flour. Fold in berries. Bake in greased muffin pans in hot oven (425 degrees F.) 25 minutes, or until done. Makes 18 muffins.

Tart Cranberry Salad

- 1 package lemon flavored gelatin
- 1 1/2 cups sugar
- 1 pint warm water
- 2 cups raw cranberries
- 1 cup dried red apples
- Dissolve gelatin and sugar in warm water. Chill. Put cranberries through food chopper. When gelatin is slightly thickened, fold in cranberries and apples. Turn into mold. Chill until firm. Unmold on crisp lettuce or romaine. Serve with mayonnaise. Serves 8. (Celery may be substituted for apples.)

Apple Coconut Salad

- 3 tart apples, pared, cored and sliced
- 1/2 cup seedless raisins
- 1/2 cup moist, sweetened coconut
- 3/4 cup mayonnaise
- Toss apples, raisins and coconut together lightly. Moisten with 1/2 cup mayonnaise. Serve on crisp lettuce. Garnish with remaining mayonnaise, and sprinkle with paprika. Serves 6.

THE LOST CHRISTMAS PRESENT

By JANICE JAY

Mary Jean's home was in a tiny cottage which stood, and still stands perhaps, about a mile from a village. The little girl lived there all alone except for her cat, Mew, as her mother and father were dead and she had never heard of any other of her relations.

One would think that living all alone and having no one to please but herself would have made Mary Jean rather selfish, but that was not so. You see poor Mary had no money and so she had to work very hard for food and clothes and things like Mew's milk, so there was no time for her to grow selfish or lazy—not that she would have done so with all the time in the world to spare, really, as she was a nice little girl.

The cottage was Mary Jean's very own and so was the quaint wooden furniture inside it. Her father had made it and he had built the cottage with his own hands, while her mother had made the curtains and covers. When they were gone it was all they had to leave Mary Jean and as there was no money the little girl had to earn some.

She got up very early in the morning and trotted down to the village, where she knocked first on one door, then, on the next, inquiring politely at each if there were any small service she could do them. The villagers knew Mary well and some were only too glad to give her a penny, or maybe two, for her trouble.

She would mind the children if the snow were too thick for their mother to take them shopping with her and she would wash dishes, scrub the wooden floor, or perhaps there was darning to be done or a patch to be sewn on; nothing was too much trouble for Mary Jean.

You may think that the little girl must have earned a lot of pennies—but she did not. There were rarely any left over after she had bought tea and sugar and potatoes and things and paid for Mew's milk and here are the two reasons why.

Firstly, whenever Mary Jean knocked at a door and saw that help was needed, she trotted in at once whether there were pennies to pay her or not, and very often there were not. Secondly, the people who had pennies to spare did not always pay the little girl all she deserved, so she never grew very rich.

Christmas was drawing near and every cottage was having its gay candle-decked fir-tree, and every child was sending letters up the chimney to kind old Father Christmas. Mary Jean wrote them for the tiny ones and she too watched them go flying up in the smoke, plotting them floating through the air, just like the snowflakes themselves, until they reached the home of Santa Claus.

The day before Christmas Eve came along and Mary Jean had to work very hard indeed, but she did not mind because at the end of it all she had six whole pennies! She hurried across to the village shop and there she carefully spent her money.

Two pennies bought a bar of cream-filled chocolate as a special Christmas treat; two more purchased a mass of sparkling tinsel, and the last two went upon a large red, rubber ball for Mew.

"Please wrap it up very well," Mary Jean said to the old woman who served her, "Mew must not know that he is to have a Christmas present." So the old woman covered it with three sheets of bright green tissue paper and tied it round with a gold cord.

"Only one more day," thought Mary Jean gleefully as she trotted up the hill to her cottage, "and then CHRISTMAS."

Mew sniffed curiously at the green parcel, but the little girl hid it carefully away. Then she piled sticks on the fire until the room was filled with an orange glow. Next she made tea in her blue teapot and toasted some bread on a long brass fork and boiled the new-laid eggs, which the farmer's wife had given her for catching a piglet which had run squealing away and almost fallen in the duckpond! Last of all she and Mew shared the chocolate cream. They made it last, a long time and when it was finished out came the silver tinsel.

Before long the little room was glittering with the gleaming festoons; from beam to beam in the ceiling and across the brick fireplace, over the windows and around the walls it went until the place was like a fairy palace. Then, Mary Jean began the important task of the evening, the writing of her letter to Father Christmas. This is what she put:

Dear Daddy Christmas,
I should like a doll for my Christmas present, please.

With love,

Then she held it over the flames, and fingers of smoke twisted and curled and took hold of the letter gently, carrying it away up the chimney and over the tree-tops.

Next day was Christmas Eve and Mary Jean had a very busy time. There were not many pennies left to pay her but the four she got were enough to buy two sausages, two big potatoes, and a little cake for her Christmas dinner. It was very late when she set off home with her basket; the dark blue sky was a mass of twinkling stars, while the moon shone like polished silver.

The air was very still and Mary Jean's little feet crunching the crisp snow was all that was to be heard until a faint, sweet tinkling sound grew out of the sky. Nearer and nearer it came until the whole world seemed full of jingling bells. And then, what do you think?—Father Christmas and his reindeer appeared high above the trees! Father Christmas himself, standing amidst a load of toy-filled sacks and parcels, with his silver beard and hair swirling around him!

He was gone in a flash, the fairy reindeer leaping through the cold air quicker than thought, but as they rushed by a large brown paper parcel fell from the sleigh and dropped—bump! bump—right at the feet of Mary Jean!

The little girl picked it up and read the label attached to it: "For My Unselfish Little Friend." Mary Jean did not hesitate a second. She turned back, made her way to the village to discover who the unselfish little girl or boy whose present had been lost, and who, therefore, would have to go without a Christmas gift at all.

Mary Jean knocked on the first door and asked the woman who opened it if Father Christmas had been yet. The woman smiled and opened the door wider until Mary Jean could see a small girl sitting by the fire in her nightie, nursing a Teddy Bear.

"She heard Santa Claus and got up to see what he had brought her!" her mother whispered. So Mary Jean turned away. That little girl's present was not lost.

At the next house the curtains were open and Mary Jean could see three children, each playing with a brand new toy. The mysterious Christmas present was not for them. On and on she went, but she always received the same reply, "My Christmas present is here."

Once she thought her journey was over when a little boy cried, "It's mine. It's my Christmas parcel!" and tried to snatch it from her, but then she saw a well-filled Christmas stocking dangling behind his back and off she went again.

"It's no use, my dear," said the kindly old woman who kept the village shop which was the last place of all, "look, all the children have their presents." Mary Jean stood in the dark street and gazed around. Yes, all the children had their gifts, for the windows glowed, and shouts of happiness came from behind every one.

"But Father Christmas has only one present for each little girl or boy, someone is without," sighed Mary Jean and she tried hard not to cry at the thought of somebody's disappointment.

The little girl went home and pushed open her cottage door. Then, forgetting the mysterious parcel, she ran to look what Father Christmas had left for her. But the wool socking hung limp and empty! Poor Mary Jean; she was so tired and tears at last came tumbling down her cheeks.

Father Christmas had finished his joyful task and he stilled his sleigh bells so that he could hear the sweetest music of all, the happy laughter of children, as he sped homeward. He chuckled as he listened, such joyous laughter it was, it seemed like a wonderful song. But how was that? Father Christmas knew every note of that song; he had heard it for such countless numbers of Christmas Eves, and he could tell that somewhere a note was wrong.

"Dear me, a sad heart somewhere," he thought, and he turned his reindeer's head in the direction of the one place where there was no laughter, to Mary Jean's home. "Goodness gracious! Crying at Christmas time!" he cried as he peeped in at the door.

"You forgot my present," sobbed Mary Jean.

Santa Claus was so upset, and as he knew that there was not a single parcel left in the sleigh, he did not know whatever to do. "I had enough I know I had enough," he muttered to himself, and then his eyes fell upon the mysterious parcel.

"Why—" he began, and Mary Jean told him all about it.

"I do not cry very often," she finished, "but I was so tired and—" But Father Christmas looked at the label, then he flung back his head and laughed and laughed.

"Why, this is your present," he cried, and he tore off the wrappings and there was the loveliest doll Mary Jean had ever seen, with a card tied around its neck saying, "To Mary Jean." "For a very unselfish little friend," he cried, and Mary Jean threw her arm around his neck and kissed his round, rosy cheek!

Back went Santa to his sleigh with a smiling Mary Jean waving goodbye and hurrying over the village he flew; listening to the world's song which now had no wrong note.

Mary Jean made up a huge fire and sat before it eating her breakfast while Mew pawed off the green paper from his Christmas gift, and they were so happy that you would not believe how happy if I could put it into words!

OTTAWA—Complete returns from all constituencies show that in the recent general election 4,392,227 Canadian men and women marked their ballots. The total vote was higher by half a million than the vote cast in the 1930 election, and set a new Canadian record, passing four millions for the first time.

The victorious Liberals received 2,058,000, or slightly less than half, although in the House of Commons they were given 175 seats out of 245. The Conservatives received 1,302,000 votes, while a million or so were divided among Co-operative Commonwealth Federation, the Social Reconstruction party, the Social Credit group, Communists, Labour, etc.

(JAMES MANGAN)

For five years we have been waiting for the depression to depart. Why is it still with us? Simply because we have waited—and no one ever waited with Spirit.

Spirit moves mountains; accomplishes the impossible—in business, in science, in the arts. You hear of a firm that puts up a great sales record. You say, "They've got Spirit!" Or you ask, "Who's the moving Spirit?" You know that winning streak came out of Spirit, nothing else.

Let's show some Spirit in 1936. Show some advertising spirit! When you advertise you place a bet on yourself, and on your product. The only real test of sincerity is money laid on the line. When you lay it on the line with advertising, you prove to the world that you believe what you say.

It takes Spirit to be an advertiser. Spirit is the essence of advertising. For advertising is life, is speed, is business vibration. Vibrate in 1936—advertise! To ignore the fact that people don't care about you is not Spirit.

Spirit soars high, shouts loud, glows intensely. So does good advertising.

Put some Spirit into your business—into your job. Spirit is invincible, irresistible, universal.

Goodbye to the Depression in 1936—if enough of us will only put enough Spirit into it.
